MIXED CONDITIONALS

I know that we have learnt that we use the zero conditional by using simple present;
the second conditional by using the simple present near If and a simple future as a result clause... and the third conditional with If + past perfect, would have + past participle.
But I need to tell you that we can mix the conditionals up.

Frequently the time in the "if clause" and the time in the "result clause" are different: One clause may be in the present (2nd Conditional) and the other in the past (3rd Conditional).
Notice that the second and the third conditionals are mixed in the sentences in the following examples.

TRUE: I did not eat breakfast several hours ago, so I am hungry now.
CONDITIONAL: If I had eaten breakfast several hours ago, I would not be hungry now.

   (3rd Conditional - past)   (2nd Conditional - present)

TRUE: He is not a good student. He didn't study for the test yesterday.
CONDITIONAL: If he were a good student, he would have studied for the test.

(2nd Conditional - present)   (3rd Conditional - past)

TRUE: I did not work hard at school so I don't have a good job now.
CONDITIONAL: If I had worked harder at school, I would have a better job now

(3rd Conditional - past)   (2nd Conditional - present)

TRUE: We didn't look at the map so now we are lost
CONDITIONAL: We wouldn't be lost if we had looked at the map

(2nd Conditional - present)   (3rd Conditional - past)

TRUE: She wasn't born in the US, so she needs a visa to work there.
CONDITIONAL: If she had been born in the US, she wouldn't need a visa to work there.

(3rd Conditional - past)   (2nd Conditional - present)

TRUE: Mark didn't get the job. so he's not moving to New York.
CONDITIONAL: If Mark had gotten the job, he would be moving to New York.

(3rd Conditional - past)   (2nd Conditional - present)

TRUE: I have to work a lot and that's why I didn't go to the party last night.
CONDITIONAL: If I didn't have to work so much, I would have gone to the party last night.
