Administratively down

You have a junior network engineer in your team who's helping you to configure Cisco devices, however he sees that one interface on a Cisco router says administratively down, what would you tell the junior network engineer to solve this issue?

Selecione uma alternativa

A   You tell the junior network engineer that it indicates that the user needs to enable the interface manually typing no shutdown

B   You tell the junior network engineer that it indicates the router needs to go to repair because there's a problem with its interface

C   You tell the junior network engineer that it's the default behavior and there is nothing else to be done

D   You tell the junior network engineer that it indicates the router needs to be upgraded to new version and you tell him to buy the new software at Cisco website
